

Navigating the Johns Hopkins Archaeological Museum Online Virtual Tour

1. To manually navigate to a different display case, use the white left and right arrows on the bottom of the screen or the arrow keys on your keyboard.
2. Automatically browse the different displays with the circular arrow button at the bottom of the screen labeled "Start/Stop Autorotation." This will rotate through all the displays briefly for browsing purposes. To stop on a display, press the button again to end the rotation.
3. If you would like to zoom in or out, use the plus and minus buttons on the bottom of the screen. Zooming can also be achieved by holding down the command key and plus key or minus key on your keyboard.
4. In each display, there are white dots near some objects. If you hover your mouse over a dot, the name of the object will appear in a floating white box. If you click a dot, a new tab will open on your browser. This new window will contain more information about the object.
 - a. You can virtually examine the object in this new window by rotating the picture of the object in a variety of ways. You can rotate the object by using the left/right arrow buttons at the bottom of the screen or the arrow buttons on your keyboard. You can also click-drag to manually rotate the object.
 - b. To automatically rotate the object, click the button directly to the right of the minus button, a circular arrow that is labeled, "Start/Stop Autorotation." The object will spin until you click the button again, which will stop the rotation.
 - c. The object can also be examined by zooming in and out on its image. This can be done with the plus and minus buttons at the bottom of the screen or by holding down the command key and plus key or minus key on your keyboard.
5. To return to the virtual museum's display cases, click your original tab or enter <http://archaeologicalmuseum.jhu.edu/virtualtour/> into your browser.
6. For copyright information about the objects and displays, click the "Show Information" button to the right of the "Start/Stop Autorotation" button. It appears as a lowercase "i" in a circle. The information will appear in the middle of the screen in a translucent black box. To remove the box from the screen, press the information button again.
7. To view the museum in fullscreen, press the rectangular button on the right labeled "Fullscreen."

Happy browsing!
